

It is instructive to think about how AI has progressed since Deep Blue.

Day

1

150 IQ

machine

2

years

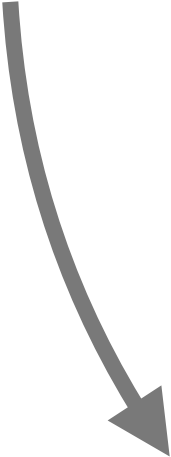

165 10

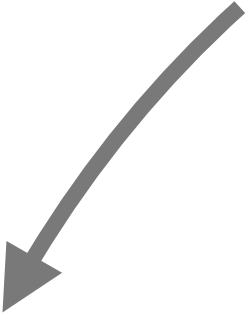

machine

You can survive slow
gradual
destructive
uploading.

If you can survive
slow gradual
destructive uploading,
you can survive fast
gradual destructive
uploading.

You can survive
fast gradual
destructive
uploading.

Let's look at one last example.

You cannot
survive
instant non-
destructive
uploading.

Mindful of Caleb's fate, Emily decides to take a different path. Like Caleb, she lacks the patience for gradual uploading. But she wants to become a synthetic thing, and knows that Caleb failed to achieve this.

So Emily decides to go for instant destructive uploading. In this process, Emily's body is destroyed, and right away a synthetic version — DigiEmily — is created.

Did Emily survive the procedure?

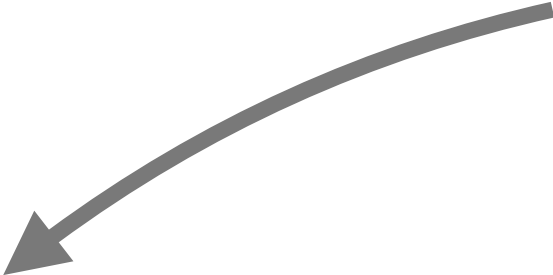

A strong case can be made that she did not, because Emily seems relevantly just like Caleb — the only difference is that Emily was destroyed whereas Caleb was not. But why should that matter?

This suggests:

If you cannot survive
instant non-destructive
uploading, you cannot
survive instant
destructive uploading.

You cannot survive
instant
destructive
uploading.

Day

15010

nachhine

years

na ch n n e

16510

You can survive slow
gradual
destructive
uploading.

If you can survive
slow gradual
destructive uploading,
you can survive fast
gradual destructive
uploading.

You can survive
fast gradual
destructive
uploading.

You cannot
survive
instant non-
destructive
uploading.

Mindful of Caleb's fate, Emily decides to take a different path. Like Caleb, she backs the patient for gradual up-lodging. But she wants to be on a synthetic thing, and knows that Cal failed to achieve this.

So Emily decided to go for instant desktop upload. In this process, Emily's body is destroyed, and right away a synthetic version — DigiEfamily—-is created.

relevant just like Caleb — the only difference is that Emily was destroyed

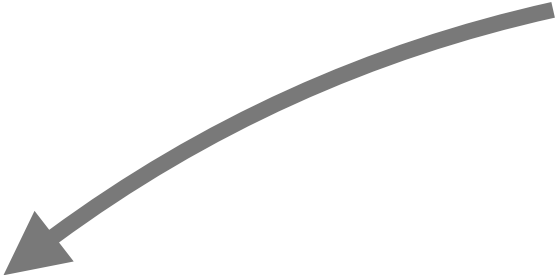

And strong case can be made that she did not, because Emily says whereas Caleb was not. But why should that matter?

If you cannot survive
instant non-destructive
uploading, you cannot
survive instant
destructive uploading.

You cannot survive
instant
destructive
uploading.

You cannot
survive
instant non-
destructive
uploading.

If you cannot survive
instant non-destructive
uploading, you cannot
survive instant
destructive uploading.

You cannot survive
instant
destructive
uploading.