

He presents his proof of an external world in the following passage:

“I can now give a large number of different proofs, each of which is a perfectly rigorous proof; and at many other times I have been in a position to give many others. I can prove now, for instance, that two human hands exist.

How? By holding up my two hands and saying, as I make a certain gesture with the right hand, “Here is one hand,” and adding, as I make a certain gesture with the left, “and here is another.” And if,

by doing this, I have proved the existence of external things, you will all see that I can also do it now in numbers of other ways; there is no need to multiply examples.”

following passage:

Here presents his proof of an external world in the the left; ‘‘and here is another.’’ And if,

numbers of other ways; there is no need existent eternal things, you will give many others. I can prove now, for instanced, that was what hands exist.

the right hand, 'Here is the hand,' and other times I have been in a position to

by doing this, I have provided the perfectly rigorous; and at many different profits, each of which is a saying, as I make certain gestures with adding, as I make certain gestures with all see that all do it in

How? By holding up my two hands and ‘‘I can now give a large number of

to multiply expressions.

following passage:

He presents his proof of an external world in the the left; ‘‘and here is at her.’’ And if;

numbers of other ways; there is no need existence of external things, you will give many others. I can prove now, if instanced, that would have had exist.

the right hand, 'Here is the hand,' and

other times I have been in a position to

by doing this, I have provided the

perfectly rigorous; and at many

different profits, each of which is a

saying, as I make certain gestures with

adding, as I make certain gestures with

all see that all do it in

How? By holding up my two hands and

“I can now give a large number of

to multiply examp1es;