

Was the College Football Playoff committee's decision to exclude Notre Dame competent, or incompetent?

Was the College Football Playoff committee's decision to exclude Notre Dame honest, or corrupt?

Logic that there are four exclusive and exhaustive possibilities.

The decision was competent
and honest.

The decision
was competent
and corrupt.

The decision
was
incompetent
and honest.

The decision
was
incompetent
and corrupt.

Poll Everywhere APP Yesterday at 3

4 | I want to talk about why the CFP committee's argument (as articulated by chair Hunter Yuracheck) for dropping Notre Dame below Miami in rankings due to BYU's no longer serving as a "buffer" between their direct comparison is not logically valid.

As you know, the topics of this class were up to you. Here is one suggestion that caught my attention:

Some people think that philosophy is of no relevance to everyday concerns.

hope that our class has disabled you of this notion. However, in this last class, I current concern.

would like to turn the topic of philosophical analysis into questions of great

Was the College Football Playoff
committee's decision to exclude Notre Dame competent, or
incompetent?

Was the College Football Playoff committee's decision to exclude
Notre Dame honest, or corrupt?

The decision
was competent
and honest.

The decision
was competent
and corrupt.

The decision
was
incompetent
and honest.

The decision
was
incompetent
and corrupt.

As you know, the topics of this class were up to you. Here is one suggestion that caught my attention:

Was the College Football Playoff
committee's decision to exclude Notre Dame competent, or incompetent?