

To ask about the reality of moral value is to ask: are there really facts about what actions are right and what wrong? Are there facts about which people are good and which bad? Are there facts about which outcomes are better than which others?

One answer is, simply: No.

There are no such facts.

A second answer is, simply:
Yes, there are such facts, and they are just as real and objective as facts about what was served in the Dining Hall last night.

A third, in between answer is:
Yes, there are such facts, but they are really just facts about our standards, or our views; they are relative to a person, or a culture.

A large red circle with a slight drop shadow, containing the text 'moral realism' in white. The text is centered and split into two lines: 'moral' on the top line and 'realism' on the bottom line.

moral
realism

moral nihilism

A solid green circle with a subtle drop shadow, containing the text "moral relativism" in white, bold, sans-serif font, centered within the circle.

moral
relativism

which bad? Are there facts about which others?

actions and right and what wrong? Are there facts about which people are good and

To ask about the reality of moral value is to ask: are there really facts about what

There are no such facts.

One answer is, simply: No.

A second answer is, simply:

Yes, there are such facts, and

they are just as real and

was served in the Dining Hall

last night.

objective as facts about what

Yes, there are such facts, but

A third, often given answer is:

they are really just facts

about our standards, or our

person, or a culture.

views; they are relative to a

moral realism

moral nihilism

moral relativism

A solid red circle with a slight drop shadow, containing the text 'moral realism' in white, lowercase, sans-serif font, centered within the circle.

moral
realism

moral
nihilism

moral relativism

A solid green circle with a subtle drop shadow, containing the text "moral relativism" in white, bold, sans-serif font.

moral relativism