

Dichotomy

Non-
universality

Proportion- ality

Continuity

A large, solid orange circle is centered on a white background. Inside the circle, the text "the number of sins someone has committed" is written in white, lowercase, sans-serif font, centered horizontally and vertically.

the number of sins
someone has committed

A solid blue circle with a slight drop shadow, centered on a white background. Inside the circle, the text "the number of sins someone has committed + how serious they are" is written in a white, sans-serif font, arranged in four lines.

the number of sins
someone has
committed + how serious they are

A solid green circle with a subtle drop shadow, centered on a white background. Inside the circle, the text "the number + seriousness of sins someone has committed for which they have not repented" is written in a white, sans-serif font, arranged in six lines.

the number +
seriousness of sins
someone has
committed for which they have not
repented

the person's faith and
trust in God

A large, solid purple circle is centered on a white background. Inside the circle, the text "the person's decision to be with God" is written in a white, sans-serif font, centered horizontally and vertically.

the person's decision
to be with God

Can you think of any choice of relevant properties which might give us a more plausible way of rejecting Continuity?

one can have the
property to different
degrees

one can have the
property at some times but not others

the paradox of heaven and hell replies to the paradox

evil & lives
not worth
living

Can you think of any choice of relevant properties which might give

Is a more plausible way of rejecting Continuity?

property to different

online and have the

degrees

online and have the

times but not theirs

property at some

the paradox of heaven and
hell

describes the kind of view wanted to discuss:

The following passage from the Catechism of the Catholic Church 1038. The resurrection of all the dead, 'of both the another as a shepherd separates the sheep from the eternity in life!

into external punishment, but the rights into but the goats at the left.... and they will go away Judgment. Christ will come "in his glory, and all just and the unjust,' will precede the Last the angels with him... Before him will be gathered all the nations, and he will separate them one from goats, and he will place the sheep at his right hand,

One topic often associated with belief in God is the topic of life after death.

Our first question today is: what we are told about life after death by perfectly good Good?

many of the major monotheistic religions compatible with the existence of a goats, and the wild prairie sheep at his but the rights are all in it.

the Last Judgment. . . Christ will come "in Before him will be gathered all the nations, 1038. The reservation of the dead, "of both the just and the unjust," will proceed right hand, but the goat at the left... and

and the wild sheep are then from another this glory, and all the angels with him.

they will go away into eternal punishment, as a shepherd separates the sheep from the talk of the last judgment wouldn't make much sense.) got to heaven forever, and some others to hell forever. (If not 'forever', then the judgement on all of us, and on the basis of our life, decides that some of us will

This certainly seems like a picture according to which, after death, God passes must depend on the possibility of life after death. We will now ask: is the kind of view of life after death we get here on pain of being perfectly good?

Turned-in showed why it is plausible that respo to the argument from evil

evil & lives
not worth
living

traditional doctrine of heaven and hell that he thinks are inconsistent with

Let's try to layout Sider's reasoning by isolating the various features of the the existence of a perfectly good God.

“A certain traditional conception of the afterlife is binary. After death one proceeds either to heaven or hell. Heaven is very, very good; hell is very, very bad. There are no possibilities for the afterlife other than heaven and hell, and membership in heaven or hell is never indeterminate or a matter of degree. The problem with the binary conception is that it contradicts God's justice. God must employ some criterion to decide who goes to heaven and who goes to hell. No reasonable criterion would be sharp; any reasonable criterion will have borderline cases. But the binary conception of the afterlife allows for no corresponding fuzziness in how the dead are to be treated. Hell must therefore contain people who are nearly indiscernible in relevant respects from people in Heaven. No just God would allow such a monstrously unfair thing.”

Let's call them the relevant properties.

open for what those properties might be; just have a name for them,

It is part of the traditional doctrine that God decides whether people go to heaven and hell based on certain properties of these people. We will have

Continuity

It seems difficult to deny Justice, Badness, or Divine Control. So that seems to give the defender of the afterlife further main options.

replies to the
paradox

A large, solid orange circle serves as the background for the text.

the number of sins
someone has
committed

the number of sins
someone has
committed + how
serious they are

the number +
seriousness of sins
someone has
committed for which
they have not
repented

the person's faith and
trust in God

A large, solid purple circle is centered on a white background. Inside the circle, the text "the person's decision to be with God" is written in a white, sans-serif font, centered horizontally and vertically.

the person's decision
to be with God

A large, solid orange circle serves as the background for the text.

the number of sins
someone has
committed

the number of sins
someone has
committed + how
serious they are

the number +
seriousness of sins
someone has
committed for which
they have not
repented

A large, solid purple circle is centered on a white background. Inside the circle, the text "the person's decision to be with God" is written in a white, sans-serif font, centered horizontally and vertically.

the person's decision
to be with God