

the basic
argument

allowable
evils

A large, solid orange circle serves as the background for the text.

what is omnipotence?

the
argument
reformulated

9*. Some pointless
evil exists.

2. If something is omnipotent, it can do anything.

there is some
good which
outweighs the
evil

A large, solid orange circle serves as the background for the text.

God cannot bring about the
good while also
eliminating the
evil

The best move here for someone objecting to Mackie's argument is to say that, contra (2), God cannot do anything. And indeed that is the moral of a very old paradox.

9*. Since printless

exquisite.

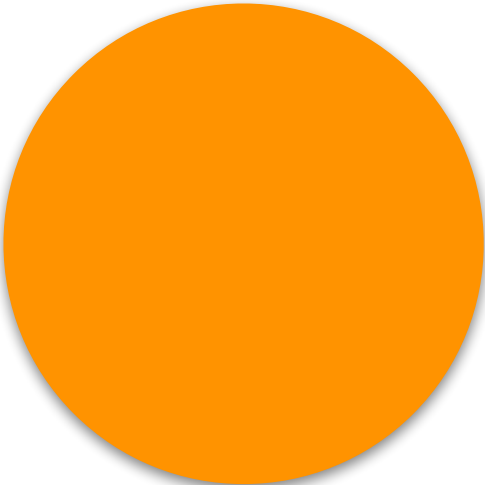

2. If something is

oninput,init,init,car

do any thing.

that is the moral of every old paradox.

The best move here for someone objecting

(2), God cannot do anything. And indeed to Mackie's argument is to say that, contra

2: If something

any possible

cairibiriing about

is important, it

the 1990s, the number of people with a mental health problem has increased by 50% (Mental Health Foundation 2000).

There is a growing awareness of the need to address the needs of people with mental health problems, and the importance of providing them with appropriate services. However, there is a significant gap between the current state of mental health services and the needs of the population. This gap is due to a number of factors, including a lack of resources, a lack of training for mental health professionals, and a lack of public awareness of mental health problems.

One of the main reasons for the gap between current services and needs is a lack of resources. Mental health services are often underfunded, and this leads to a shortage of staff and a lack of services. In addition, there is a lack of training for mental health professionals, which means that they are not always equipped to deal with the needs of people with mental health problems.

Another reason for the gap is a lack of public awareness of mental health problems. Many people do not understand what mental health problems are, and they often have negative attitudes towards people with mental health problems. This can lead to discrimination and a lack of support for people with mental health problems.

There are a number of ways in which the gap between current services and needs can be closed. One way is to increase funding for mental health services. This would allow for more staff and more services to be provided. Another way is to provide more training for mental health professionals, so that they are better equipped to deal with the needs of people with mental health problems.

It is also important to increase public awareness of mental health problems. This can be done through a number of ways, including education in schools, public information campaigns, and the media. By increasing public awareness, we can help to reduce discrimination and increase support for people with mental health problems.

There is a need for a comprehensive approach to addressing the needs of people with mental health problems. This approach should include increasing funding, providing more training for mental health professionals, and increasing public awareness. Only by taking these steps can we hope to close the gap between current services and needs.

4.1. The current state of mental health services

The current state of mental health services is one of crisis. There is a significant gap between the current state of mental health services and the needs of the population.

2. If something is on it,

3. If God exists, then God can

1. If God exists, then God is

4. If God exists, then God is

9*. Some principles exist.

it can do anything.

5*. If something is wholly good,

evil as God said. (4,5)

(3,6)

elinitates all points less vi1.

7. If God exists, then God

elinitatesas much printless

prints it as it can.

it always initiates as much

do anything. (1,2)

no point less evi1. (7)

C. God does not exist. (8,9)

8. If God exists, then there is

6. If God exists, then God

A large orange circle with a subtle drop shadow, containing the text "what is omnipotence?".

what is
omnipotence?

the
argument
reformulated

So attention naturally focuses on premise (5).

5. If something is wholly

good, it always reminds

as in the visit card.

allowable
evils

A large, solid orange circle serves as the background for the text.

what is omnipotence?

evildoers.

9*. Some points less

There are two especially important arguments against belief in God.

the basic
argument

allowable
evils

9*. Some pointless
evil exists.

2. If something is omnipotent, it can
do anything.

9*. Some pointless
evil exists.

2. If something is omnipotent, it can
do anything.