

the basic
argument

allowable
evils

A large, solid orange circle serves as the background for the text.

what is omnipotence?

the
argument
reformulated

What do we mean by 'evil'?

For our purposes, an evil is just some feature of the world that the world would be (everything else equal) better off without.

So defined, it seems very plausible that there are many evils, some large and some small. The Holocaust is a massive evil; your roommate being rude to you this morning is a small one.

It seems plausible both that we can recognize that some things are evils in this sense, and that we can sometimes see that one evil is worse than another.

At this point, you might be inclined to object: don't people have different definitions of 'evil' and disagree about what things are evil?

Sure. But notice that you don't have to be able to define something, or resolve every disagreement about something, to recognize some instances of a kind.

For our purposes, an evil is just some feature of the equal) better off without.

world that the world would be (everything else

So defined, it seems very plausible that there are many evils, some large and some small. The Holocaust is a massive evil;

your mate being rude to you this morning is a small one.

It seems plausible both that we can recognize that some

that one evil is worse than another.

things are evils in this sense, and that we can sometimes see have different definitions of 'evil' and disagree about what

At this point, you might be inclined to object: don't people things are even?

something, or resolve everything, or disagree about something, to recognize someone instances of a kind.

Sure. But notice that you don't have to be able to define

So attention naturally focuses on premise (5).

5. If something is wholly

as in the visit card.

good, it always reminds

the basic
argument

allowable
evils

evildoers.

9*. Some points less

allowable
evils

A large, solid orange circle serves as the background for the text.

what is
omnipotence?

There are two especially important arguments against belief in God.

2; If something

is important, it

cairibiriing about

any possible

elinitates nich printess

elinites all point less evil.

3. If God exists, then God can

it always initiates as much

4. If God exists, then God is

do anything. (1,2)

8. If God exists, then there is

5*. If something is wholly good,

2. If something is on it,

it can do anything.

1. If God exists, then God is

7. If God exists, then God

evil as God said. (4,5)

9*. Some principles exist.

no point less evi1. (7)

6. If God exists, then God

prints even as it can.

(3,6)

C. God does not exist. (8,9)

A large orange circle with a subtle drop shadow, containing the text "what is omnipotence?".

what is
omnipotence?

the
argument
reformulated