

the basic
argument

allowable
evils

A large, solid orange circle serves as the background for the text.

what is omnipotence?

the
argument
reformulated

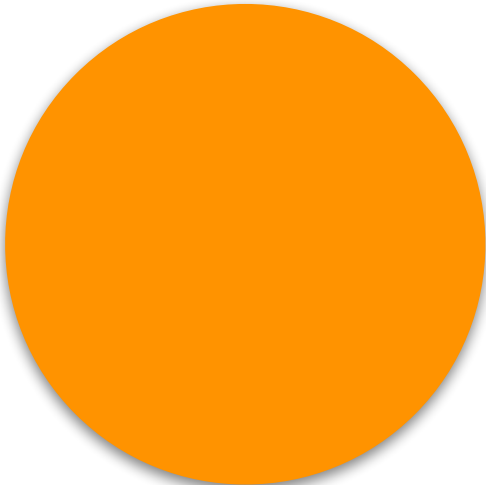

there is some
good G which outweighs E

the person
cannot bring
about G while also eliminating
E

Let's say that an evil is pointless when these two conditions are not met. That is, an evil is pointless whenever there is either no outweighing good or if the good could have been brought about without the evil.

5. If something is wholly good, it always eliminates as much evil as it can.

Let's say that an evil is pointless when these two conditions either no outveighing good or if the good could have been brought about without the evil.

are not met. That is, an evil is pointless whenever there is

So attention naturally focuses on premise (5).

5. If something is wholly

as in the first case.

good, it always ends

5. If something is wholly

as in the visit card.

good, it always reminds

cairibiriing about

2: If something

is important, it

any possible

the 1990s, the number of people with a mental health problem has increased by 50% (Mental Health Foundation 2000).

There is a growing awareness of the need to address the needs of people with mental health problems. The Department of Health (2000) has set out a vision for the future of mental health care, which includes a focus on prevention, early intervention, and recovery. The vision is based on the principles of partnership, choice, and recovery. The Department of Health (2000) states that the vision is to 'ensure that people with mental health problems are able to live full and meaningful lives, and that they are able to contribute to society'.

The vision is based on the principles of partnership, choice, and recovery. The Department of Health (2000) states that the vision is to 'ensure that people with mental health problems are able to live full and meaningful lives, and that they are able to contribute to society'. The vision is based on the principles of partnership, choice, and recovery. The Department of Health (2000) states that the vision is to 'ensure that people with mental health problems are able to live full and meaningful lives, and that they are able to contribute to society'.

The vision is based on the principles of partnership, choice, and recovery. The Department of Health (2000) states that the vision is to 'ensure that people with mental health problems are able to live full and meaningful lives, and that they are able to contribute to society'. The vision is based on the principles of partnership, choice, and recovery. The Department of Health (2000) states that the vision is to 'ensure that people with mental health problems are able to live full and meaningful lives, and that they are able to contribute to society'.

The vision is based on the principles of partnership, choice, and recovery. The Department of Health (2000) states that the vision is to 'ensure that people with mental health problems are able to live full and meaningful lives, and that they are able to contribute to society'. The vision is based on the principles of partnership, choice, and recovery. The Department of Health (2000) states that the vision is to 'ensure that people with mental health problems are able to live full and meaningful lives, and that they are able to contribute to society'.

The vision is based on the principles of partnership, choice, and recovery. The Department of Health (2000) states that the vision is to 'ensure that people with mental health problems are able to live full and meaningful lives, and that they are able to contribute to society'. The vision is based on the principles of partnership, choice, and recovery. The Department of Health (2000) states that the vision is to 'ensure that people with mental health problems are able to live full and meaningful lives, and that they are able to contribute to society'.

The vision is based on the principles of partnership, choice, and recovery. The Department of Health (2000) states that the vision is to 'ensure that people with mental health problems are able to live full and meaningful lives, and that they are able to contribute to society'. The vision is based on the principles of partnership, choice, and recovery. The Department of Health (2000) states that the vision is to 'ensure that people with mental health problems are able to live full and meaningful lives, and that they are able to contribute to society'.

The vision is based on the principles of partnership, choice, and recovery. The Department of Health (2000) states that the vision is to 'ensure that people with mental health problems are able to live full and meaningful lives, and that they are able to contribute to society'. The vision is based on the principles of partnership, choice, and recovery. The Department of Health (2000) states that the vision is to 'ensure that people with mental health problems are able to live full and meaningful lives, and that they are able to contribute to society'.

2. If something is on it,

onniipotent.

it can do anything.

do anything. (1,2)

3. If God exists, then God can

1. If God exists, then God is

5*. If something is wholly good,

wholly good.

4. If God exists, then God is

6. If God exists, then God

prints even as it can.

it always initiates as much

7. If God exists, then God

elinites all point less vii.

(3,6)

evaluates God's air. (4,5)

8. If God exists, then there is no point less evi1. (7)

C. God does not exist. (8,9)

9*. Some principles exist.

elinitatesas much printless

allowable
evils

A large, solid orange circle serves as the background for the text.

what is omnipotence?

the
argument
reformulated

There are two especially important arguments against belief in God.

the basic
argument

allowable
evils

9*. Some points less

evivivis. exis. stis.

A large, solid orange circle serves as the background for the text.

what is
omnipotence?

have considered suggest a way to repair the argument.

We have seen that there is reason to doubt premise (5) of Mackie's argument. But the counterexample to premise (5) we

5. If something is wholly good, it always eliminates as much evil as it can.