

the basic argument

allowable
evils

A large, solid orange circle serves as the background for the text.

what is omnipotence?

the
argument
reformulated

The argument appears to be valid, so it looks like anyone who believes that God does exist must reject one of the argument's independent premises.

The traditional believer in God cannot reject (1) or (4); and (2) and (9) seem at first glance tough to reject. So attention naturally focuses on premise (5).

1. If God exists, then God is omnipotent.
2. If something is omnipotent, it can do anything.
3. If God exists, then God can do anything. (1,2)
4. If God exists, then God is wholly good.
5. If something is wholly good, it always eliminates as much evil as it can.
6. If God exists, then God eliminates as much evil as God can. (4,5)
7. If God exists, then God eliminates all evil. (3,6)
8. If God exists, then there is no evil. (7)
9. Some evil exists.

C. God does not exist. (8,9)

THE ARGUMENT FROM EVIL

there

argument

T

n

e wno

does appraais

be valid,

1

2

3

4

5 look's

reject

that argument's

deities

exist

nust

anvone

independent premises.

God

a n

d toughn

first

traditionnal

There

bedriver

a

n

d

can not

God

(4)

for courses

S

E

E

nn

reject.

SO

■

reject

glance

premise

5.

attention

naturally

the 1990s, the number of people with a mental health problem has increased by 50% (Mental Health Foundation 2000).

There is a growing awareness of the need to address the needs of people with mental health problems, and a number of initiatives have been developed to improve the lives of people with mental health problems. The Mental Health Act 1983 was amended in 1997 to give people with mental health problems more control over their own lives. The Mental Health Act 1997 was introduced to give people with mental health problems more control over their own lives. The Mental Health Act 1997 was introduced to give people with mental health problems more control over their own lives.

The Mental Health Act 1997 was introduced to give people with mental health problems more control over their own lives.

The Mental Health Act 1997 was introduced to give people with mental health problems more control over their own lives.

The Mental Health Act 1997 was introduced to give people with mental health problems more control over their own lives.

The Mental Health Act 1997 was introduced to give people with mental health problems more control over their own lives.

The Mental Health Act 1997 was introduced to give people with mental health problems more control over their own lives.

The Mental Health Act 1997 was introduced to give people with mental health problems more control over their own lives.

The Mental Health Act 1997 was introduced to give people with mental health problems more control over their own lives.

The Mental Health Act 1997 was introduced to give people with mental health problems more control over their own lives.

The Mental Health Act 1997 was introduced to give people with mental health problems more control over their own lives.

The Mental Health Act 1997 was introduced to give people with mental health problems more control over their own lives.

The Mental Health Act 1997 was introduced to give people with mental health problems more control over their own lives.

The Mental Health Act 1997 was introduced to give people with mental health problems more control over their own lives.

The Mental Health Act 1997 was introduced to give people with mental health problems more control over their own lives.

The Mental Health Act 1997 was introduced to give people with mental health problems more control over their own lives.

The Mental Health Act 1997 was introduced to give people with mental health problems more control over their own lives.

The Mental Health Act 1997 was introduced to give people with mental health problems more control over their own lives.

The Mental Health Act 1997 was introduced to give people with mental health problems more control over their own lives.

The Mental Health Act 1997 was introduced to give people with mental health problems more control over their own lives.

The Mental Health Act 1997 was introduced to give people with mental health problems more control over their own lives.

The Mental Health Act 1997 was introduced to give people with mental health problems more control over their own lives.

The Mental Health Act 1997 was introduced to give people with mental health problems more control over their own lives.

The Mental Health Act 1997 was introduced to give people with mental health problems more control over their own lives.

aiy

abovt

prossibile

Q

2

11 bring the 1990s, the number of people with a diagnosis of schizophrenia has increased by 50% (Meltzer 1997).

There is a growing awareness of the need to improve the lives of people with mental health problems. The World Health Organization (WHO) has developed a 'Mental Health Strategy for Europe' (WHO 1994) which aims to improve the lives of people with mental health problems by providing them with the best possible care and support. The strategy is based on the following principles: (1) the need to provide a comprehensive range of services; (2) the need to ensure that services are accessible to all who need them; (3) the need to ensure that services are of high quality; and (4) the need to ensure that services are cost-effective.

The WHO strategy has been adopted by many countries, including the UK. The UK government has committed itself to implementing the strategy, and has set up a number of bodies to oversee the implementation of the strategy. The Mental Health Review Board (MHRB) is one of these bodies. The MHRB is responsible for monitoring the implementation of the strategy, and for ensuring that services are of high quality.

The MHRB has a number of functions, including: (1) monitoring the implementation of the strategy; (2) ensuring that services are of high quality; (3) ensuring that services are accessible to all who need them; and (4) ensuring that services are cost-effective. The MHRB also has a number of other functions, including: (1) providing advice and support to local mental health services; (2) conducting research into mental health services; and (3) promoting the rights of people with mental health problems.

The MHRB is a non-departmental public body, and is funded by the Department of Health. The MHRB is made up of a number of members, including: (1) representatives of the Department of Health; (2) representatives of local mental health services; (3) representatives of people with mental health problems; and (4) representatives of the public. The MHRB meets regularly to discuss the implementation of the strategy, and to make recommendations to the Department of Health.

The MHRB has a number of committees, including: (1) the Clinical Committee; (2) the Legal Committee; (3) the Finance Committee; and (4) the Public Relations Committee. The Clinical Committee is responsible for monitoring the clinical quality of services, and for ensuring that services are of high quality. The Legal Committee is responsible for monitoring the legal aspects of services, and for ensuring that services are compliant with the law.

The Finance Committee is responsible for monitoring the financial aspects of services, and for ensuring that services are cost-effective. The Public Relations Committee is responsible for promoting the rights of people with mental health problems, and for ensuring that the public is aware of the services available. The MHRB also has a number of other committees, including: (1) the Research Committee; (2) the Training Committee; and (3) the Quality Improvement Committee.

The MHRB is a key body in the implementation of the WHO strategy. The MHRB is responsible for monitoring the implementation of the strategy, and for ensuring that services are of high quality. The MHRB also has a number of other functions, including: (1) providing advice and support to local mental health services; (2) conducting research into mental health services; and (3) promoting the rights of people with mental health problems.

onniipotent.

onniipotent,

enlil in istars

exilis,;

eliriristars

elirir ates

anything.

exilis,;

exilis,;

exilis,;

exilis +

enxilis.

(1, 2)

(3,6)

thein

evil.

always

good.

QVil.

good,

(8,9)

Wholly

t

u

e

i

e

learn

iii

iv

c

id

Wholly

evili

t

nd

e

in mvcd

C

2

11

God

©

20

11

C

2

1

1

God

211

God

God

God

2

evili

God

is

God

G

O

d

God

Evil

does it

Some

God

do

2

3

thein

do

o

1

2

3

i

S

3

3

2

3

i

j

3

3 poindles

po. in tiles ss

Pop in the 1980s

the basic
argument

allowable
evils

A large, solid orange circle serves as the background for the text.

what is omnipotence?

the argument
reformulated

exilis,;

(

4

,

5

)

Exilis®

exits.

(3,6)

evili.

evil

good,

(8,9)

Wholly

theire

evili

the in

©

2011

God

evili

Q

V

i

I

does

Some

God

2

3

GOd

i

S

2

3

(2)

5 twow

there

3

4

5 arguments

against

be life

important especially

God

poiritless

A large, solid orange circle serves as the background for the text.

what is omnipotence?

Some

exilis + s.

evi1

allowable
evils

attention

naturally

for cuses

premise

(5)

SO

wholly

always

e

v

i

l

something in it

mvcd

good,

2

3

2

3

