

free will
and determinism

A large, solid orange circle with a subtle drop shadow, serving as a background for the text.

against
compatibilist
free will

against
incompatibilist
free will

1. No one has any choice about the state of the world in the distant past.
2. No one has any choice about what the laws of nature are.
3. No one has any choice about the combination of the state of the world in the distant past + the laws of nature. (1,2)
4. If determinism is true, then the state of the world in the distant past + the laws of nature necessitate every future action.
5. If we have no choice about some facts, and those facts necessitate X, we have no choice about X.

- C. If determinism is true, no one has any choice about any future action. (3,4,5)

THE CONSEQUENCE ARGUMENT

The conclusion of the consequence argument says that if determinism is true, there are no free actions. So the truth of determinism is incompatible with the existence of free actions.

world in the distant past.

1. No one has any choice about the state of the

2. No one has any idea about what the laws of

C. If `detern` is true, no choice the street at the world in the distant past +

the laws of nature. (1, 2)

4. If determinism is true, then the state of the

in vivo and in vitro.

3. No one has any choice about the combination of necessitate every future action.

world in the distant past + the laws of nature

5. If we have no choice but to make facts, and about any future action. (3,4,5)

that's not it at all, we have no choice

adivit

x.

The conclusion of the consequence argument says that if determinism is true,

existence of free actions.

there are no free actions. So the truth of determinism is incompatible with the

1. No one has any choice about events which

2. None has any choice about DIDS. ATJR.

and none has any choice about whether,

~ If none has about choice about whether P,

6. If $\det A$ is true, then A has any

3. If determined, the only one nature say that if DINS ARE happy,

C. If determinis_true , then no_one_has_any varlatatie + the last of the

happened in the distant past.

if P , then Q , then one has any choice

5. No one has any choice about what the laws

then DECISION. (4,5)

4. If determinism is true, the laws of

then DECISION happens. (3)

choice about DECISION (2, 6, 7)

of interest.

about whether @.

future is not inconsistent with the state of the

theorie about the fact that if DNR combination of four - that No choice principle, and determinism

This argument seems to show that the choice about the laws of nature, then no one has any choice about the past, no rules out free will.

true, there are no free actions — and

seems to show that if determinism is

Since the first three of these theses seem quite plausible, the argument

hence that free will is incompatible with

Wili.

2. If Libertarianism is true, there is no free

1. Freewill is incompatible with determinism.

0: There is no fire in.

Real/|the master argument:

in free will, and find the consequent argument persuasive, it looks

The consequence argument is a defense of premise (1). If you believe tempting to reply to the master argument by denying premise (2).

against
compatibilist
free will

A red circular button with a slight shadow, containing the text "against incompatibilist free will" in white, lowercase, sans-serif font.

against
incompatibilist
free will

reality of free will.

We can lay out this puzzle in terms of the following master argument against the

2. If Libertarianism is true, there is no free

Wili.

1. Free will is incompatible with determinism.

0. There is no fire in.

Compatibility believers in free will reject premise (1). An incompatibilist believe in free will rejects premise (2).

Now, so far we have been given no reason to think that either premise (2) for (2), and one for (3).

or premise (3) is true. We're now going to look at two arguments — one

The conclusion of the consequence argument says that if determinism is true, there are no free actions. So the truth of determinism is incompatible with the existence of free actions.